Women of Society and Stage Models at Fashion Salon

Cintra of London Gives Exhibition for Soldiers and Sailors Club.

With an array of color and draperies the Hon. Mrs. John Porteus of London, had a happy chance to illustrate her ideas of dress in the Plaza ballroom yesterday. The room was filled both afternoon, when evening gowns and negligees were worn by women of the stage, and evening when the same gowns were shown by young women of society.

Mrs. Frances Rogers outlined the work done by the Soldiers and Sailors Club of New York at 251 Madison avenue, for which the Fashion Show was being given, and of which Mrs. Rogers is president. The club has served 34,200 meals and provided 9,448 beds for former service men in its first year, besides helping hundreds of men in getting positions and hospital care.

After this talk Cintra, as Mrs. Porteus is known professionally, appeared as a charming picture in an evening gown of black velvet, caught up with straps and diamond clasps over the shoulders, a pointed train and a black velvet turban, having a long plume sweeping the left shoulder.

But the real feature of the afternoon was Dolores, who came over from "Sally," now playing in Philadelphia, especially for the show, as she is from England and has had considerable experience in the world of fashion.

She walked about with exquisite grace in half a dozen of Cintra's best creations.

The models from the stage included Mrs. Moffatt Johnston, the Misses Mary Boland, Juliette Crosby, Margaret Dale, Consuelo Flower, Gladys Hansen, Marie Nordstrom, Vivienne Segal, Selma Royle, Cecile Stevens, Sydney Thompson, Virginia Beardsley, the Norris sisters and Miss Marguerite Sylvia. Miss Mabel Beardsley was in charge of the afternoon performance.

At night these same fifty gowns were worn by young women of society, some of them debutantes of the season. Miss Grace Henry had charge of the evening program.

Miss Catharine Vanderbilt had charge of the selling of programs at night. She was assisted by a number of young women, including Miss Elizabeth Condon, Miss Cornelia Robb, Miss Constance Austin, Miss Cornelia Skinner, Miss Mabel White, Miss Edwina J. J. Edwards, Miss Sheldon, Mrs. Graham Blandy, Miss Polly McCall and Miss Constance Banks.

Among those who sold tickets were Mrs. John W. Castles, Jr., Mrs. Otis Skinner, Miss Martha Root White, Miss Mabel White, Miss Edwina J. J. Edwards, Mrs. Edward Sheldon, Mrs. Graham Blandy, Miss Polly McCall and Miss Constance Banks.

Some of the models of the evening program were the delightful posing, which was Miss Virginia de Haven, who was most alluring in a black taffeta dress with a long, flowing train, and a black velvet dress with a long, flowing train.

Another bit that stood out of the program was Miss Hayes Blake as a bride, in a rather startling black and white dress, with a long, flowing train, and a black velvet dress with a long, flowing train.

AJ. Robinson Dies; Built Many Noted Structures Here

Contractor Held Membership in Numerous Civic and Church Bodies.

Andrew J. Robinson, president of the building firm of Andrew J. Robinson, Company, at 15-17 West street, and for more than fifty years one of the most prominent builders in New York, died yesterday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. George J. Kennedy of Prospect Park, White Plains. He was born seventy-nine years ago at Bloomfield, N. J., and for more than thirty years had lived in 123 West Seventy-sixth street.

Mr. Robinson came to New York when he was 17 years old, and learned the mason's trade under his uncle, John M. His work included many of the important buildings of the city, among them one of the first skyscrapers, the St. Paul Building, Broadway and Ann street. He also erected the New York Historical Society Building, the Memorial Hospital, the Pledge Institute at Hightstown, N. J., the New York Hospital, St. Luke's Hospital, the School of Mines at Columbia University, the residences of Stuyvesant Fish, Ellis Root and Henry P. Havemeyer and George W. Brown, John M. McKim, and others.

He devoted much time to the advancement of the Mason Builders' Association, of which he had been a member since its organization, and served many years on its executive committee. He was prominent in the Baptist Church and was a member of the Mount Morris congregation. He was trustee and treasurer of the Mount Morris Baptist Church, Southern New York Baptist Mission Society and other Baptist organizations. He was a member of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, a member of the Historical Society, a member of the Metropolitan Museum, the New York Botanical Society, the Transportation Club and the General Society of Mechanics and Tradesmen.

In 1870 Mr. Robinson married Harriet Elizabeth King of New York, who died in 1911. He leaves a son, Drew King Robinson, associated in business with him, and a daughter, Mrs. Kenneth P. Budd, whose wedding was held yesterday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from the Mount Morris Baptist Church.
